Essex, who has been a Canadian army for seven years, has been granted 30-day leave to be with his family in this crisis.—Central Press Canadian.

LONDON LORD MAYOR ON GOODWILL TOUR—The Right Honourable Sir Dorey Lawson, lord mayor of London, escorted by Mayor Vincent Impellitteri, is shown walking up the steps of the New York city hall for the official reception. Joining them are Lady Lawson and Mrs. Impellitteri. The city extended a warm welcome to the visiting lord mayor and his wife, including the ticker tape parade up Broadway. The lord mayor is completing a goodwill tour of seven countries and 15 cities. He led his city hall audience that everywhere he went he found "enormous enthusiasm" for the plan of uniting against Communism.—Central Press Canadian.

He led a war-time command of a Wehrmacht Division stationed near Bologna.

ITALY'S FIRM RECEIVES HONORARY DEGREE—Prime minister of Italy, Alcide De Gasperi, (left), is shown receiving an honorary doctor of laws degree from the Reverend C. C. Lathrop, rector of Ottawa University. ANOTHER LINK IN PACIFIC DEFENCE CHAIN—A good will gift of an ivory case is made to President Truman by President Elpidio Quirón of the Philippines during his visit at the White House. The visiting chief of state came to Washington in connection with the signing of a mutual defence pact. Canada through various U.S. ports with Australia, Japan, New Zealand and Indonesia is one link in the extensive military defence chain.—Central Press Canadian.

TO LAUGH OR CRY—A pile to prove is quite a problem for this war-torn Korean youngster. The knock he clutched in his small fist has been lost landed in Korea and the two "Thumper" officers specializing on the humor of the Indians are Phil, C. C. Pump, (left), of North Bay, Ont., and Phil-Conti, J. A. Watt, of Montreal.

RUSSIAN GRAIN FLOWS TO BRITAIN—Close to a million bushels of Russian grain is flowing every year into British granaries in return for British products. Protests from the U.S. over Britain's trade with the U.S.S.R. were answered by Foreign Minister Herbert Morrison, who said: "To do without the things we get from Eastern Europe would damage and sabotage our economy for a return that would yield us little." Here a British coastal ship takes on a load of Russian barley for transport around England.—Central Press Canadian.

These signing the statement were among 400 delegates from 17 countries at a recent Moral Re-Armament Assembly for the Reconstruction of Pacific Relations in Los Angeles. Countries represented included Canada, the United States, Japan, Burma, India, New Zealand, Australia, the Philippines, Korea, and the Netherlands. The Assembly heard news of a Korean team working to bring an understanding of Christian democracy, almost without sight of the front lines.

Commenting on the sessions, the Los Angeles Herald and Express said: "We must not underestimate in any particular the importance of the Moral Re-Armament Assembly... which seeks to remove mistrust and fear and create a real basis for unity."

The editorial, entitled "How early Seen as World Peace Began," added: "An ideological revolution is in the making which we will remake the world."

Special Ships Designed For Bulk Raw Sugar

A new company under the name of Sugar Line, Ltd., plans to build six ships to carry raw cane sugar in bulk from the West Indies to Great Britain. The new company has been formed by Tate & Lyle, Ltd., United Molasses Co., and West India Sugar Co.

Although primary object of the new organization is to build and operate ships for raw sugar, vessels will also be suitable for carrying any bulk cargo, including sulphur, iron ore, or grain.

The new vessels will be identical to shipments of sugar in bulk to Great Britain have come to stay, even if there is a return to the free world sugar market.

Although sugar has been transported in bulk for some time, that operations have provided that only one ship is actually designed for the trade, can still saving be made on loading and unloading, and the speedier turn around of ships.

DON'T WASTE THAT PRECIOUS HAY CROP

Ample feed supplies this year suggest ample harvest, and every advantage should be taken of the opportunity presented to store supplies for the future. A reminder that the good reason not to store hay is not should scarcely be necessary, but when feed is plentiful there is a tendency to forget those years when feed was unobtainable or could be had only at extremely high prices.

Preparation for the future is essential to successful farming, says A. M. Wilson, Field Crop Commissioner, Alberta Department of Agriculture. Some farmers are now looking for markets for their surplus hay, but with most areas of the province equally loaded there is little demand at present for the purchase of this commodity. Feed in the stack is money in the bank. When the price goes up, says Wilson, hay will be the farmer who has the consolation of an abundance of well preserved hay and acrement.

Modern haymaking facilities, the handling and storage of hay, and hay and groundfeed can be hauled and the stacked hay, topped with hay or straw, large quantities can be stored for almost indefinite periods.

Before still, there may be building or sheds about the farm that can be used for hay storage. Even if the ordinary stacking method is followed, well built and well topped stacks will hold feed in safe condition for a considerable season of time.

With normal weather conditions, livestock should be able to make out without too much difficulty for the next two months. An open winter would extend this period considerably.

Generally, mature stock can be depended on to make better use of crop aftermath than young growing stock. Cows or mature sows can be brought to killing condition on a combination of good weather and plenty of crop aftermath. Calves and yearlings will require a longer period, plus considerable grain, to reach the same degree of finish.

During the next month, stockmen will be selling their cows, and large numbers of recently weaned cows will be marketed. Such cows are usually not too fleshy, and will put on exceedingly good gains if stored on crop aftermath and cover crop.

Good weather dictates that these cows be used to pick up crop waste on farms rather than go direct to the packing plants as carcasses and hides.

Lack of spare parts and wet weather do not help on livestock in the packing plants as they are now apparent.

Value of Livestock As Pick-Up Attachments

Lathbridge Experimental Station
Weekly Letter.

The current season's harvest situation serves to emphasize the value of livestock as a well rounded farm operation. Farm equipment dealers report a flood of orders for pick-up attachments for combines, wheelers and binders. In addition, many farmers are making their own attachments to facilitate one of the most difficult harvest operations they have ever faced. Even the most efficient attachment will leave an immense amount of crop and materially reduce acreage loss.
